

A black and white photograph of a mountainous landscape in Gran Canaria. The view is from an elevated position, looking down into a valley. In the foreground, a steep, rocky slope is covered with sparse vegetation and several tall, thin, dark trees. The middle ground shows a wide valley with a winding river or stream. The valley floor is a mix of open fields and terraced agricultural plots. In the background, a range of mountains stretches across the horizon under a pale sky. The photograph has a vintage appearance with some wear and tear, including scratches and small dark spots.
